Silverstone Air Starts Early Morning Mombasa Flights

LAST FRIDAY saw the launch of the Silverstone Air flight service from Wilson Airport, Nairobi to Mombasa's Moi International Airport. The low cost carrier, that is making waves in the industry, has been praised highly by those passengers that have used it so far, writes ANJUM ASODIA.

This new route, which departs Wilson Airport at 10a.m. and 3.30p.m. every day, will depart from Moi International Airport in Mombasa at 6.30a.m. and 11.30a.m.

At an introductory fare of 4,600 Kenya Shillings one way (inclusive of taxes), the airline will be deploying a 50-seater Bombardier Dash 8 Q-300 series and the Fokker 50, providing a much needed service for Kenyans and tourists on this route.

According to the airlines' Sales and Marketing Manager Patrick Oketch "the airline has responded positively to overwhelming requests by clients to have the service."

At a special launch dinner by the airline to Mombasa-based tour and travel agents, Mombasa Governor Ali Hassan Joho has commended the management for adding early morning flights out of Mombasa to Wilson Airport.

Joho said that he was impressed with the confidence the management of the airline had in introducing these flights and pledged his government's full support to the firm.

"We are experiencing growing interest in business and are seeing a lot of positive developments all geared towards making the common person comfortable" he added.

According to the Governor, Silverstone Air has given Kenyans opportunities to explore Mombasa and other areas like Kisumu, Maasai Mara, Lamu, Diani and Malindi which are ideal tourist attractions and business centres.

"We are aware that ever since Silverstone Air made a first in launching the only direct air connection linking the two port cities of Mombasa and Kisumu, their flights are always fully booked" the Governor said.

He also confirmed that destination Mombasa was picking up so well in terms of tourism arrivals and that his county government was working closely with the National government to ensure that the port city and the county at large remains an attractive destination.

"Mombasa is looking forward to hosting several global meetings and events, starting with a global aviation conference which will later on be followed by a meeting for medical practitioners, maritime conference and the World Skai Congress later in the month of October.

"This will require a lot of logistical support from investors and with air connectivity ser-

It's time for a new adventure

Google Kenya on 5th September, kicked off the first ever Web Rangers Africa summit to tackle how to make the internet safer for young users. This student-led initiative in featured representatives and "Web Rangers" from Kenya, South Africa and Nigeria. They are gathered at Brookhouse School from 5 September till 7 September (today).

Kenya Hosts Its First Google Web Rangers Africa Summit

Google Kenya is hosting the first Web Rangers summit in Africa aimed at spreading awareness about internet safety and promoting responsible digital citizenship on the continent.

26 Web Rangers from Kenya, Nigeria and South Africa are attending the summit to meet and share ideas on how they can make the Internet a safer place for young Internet users in their respective countries.

Ms. Fatuma Hirsi, the Principal Secretary Broadcasting and Telecommunication, said: "Programmes such as Web Rangers are a very welcome complement to the work that parents, teachers, guardians and governments do in building a better world for our children."

"I congratulate Google in conceptualising the programme and scaling it to many countries in such a short time, and also for your work in building into your products and services tools and resources that help families to use the Internet safely and responsibly."

"I thank you too for your choice of our beautiful country Kenya as the host of your Summit," she added in a speech read on her behalf by Mr. Timothy Were, Deputy Director, Ministry of ICT Kenya.

Doron Avni, Director, Public Policy and Government Relations, EMEA Emerging Markets an founder of Webrangersa said: "At Google, we are deeply committed to protecting children on the Internet and providing all of our users with a safe experience because protecting kids is a responsibility we all share, and our business depends on people being online

- and we need it to be a safe space."

He added: "The Internet can aid children with their school work, help them connect with friends, and offer a creative outlet."

"At the same time, children have been exposed to some of the worst forms of exploitation, violence and abuse online."

"It is therefore important that we all work closely together in order to mitigate the unintended negative aspects of this medium on children, while at the same time maximising the benefits they can accrue from it."

Main highlights of the Summit programme include: a bootcamp on how to make campaign videos for online audiences topics such as diversity and inclusion, trust, tolerance and responsibility.

Participants will also learn how to tackle real life policy issues - focusing on cyberbullying, sexting, sharing personal information online and catfishing.

Web Rangers is a Google-led digital literacy programme aimed at promoting and educating the youth about how the internet is an empowering tool relevant to their lives and their future.

The programme provides workshops run by local online safety experts to help train young people.

These young online safety 'ambassadors' then run campaigns amongst their peers, schools and communities to raise awareness of online safety.

Started in Israel in 2011, Web Rangers has since grown to 15 countries around the world. In Africa, Web Rangers is active in 3 countries - Kenya, South Africa and Nigeria.

In Kenya, Web Rangers was launched in 2015 at Precious Girls Secondary, Riruta. During the launch, President Uhuru Kenyatta challenged the programme to harness the agency of young people to use technology to build bridges of peace and understanding in their communities.

The programme has been implemented in over 176 schools across Kenya, directly training 3,500 students and 1,500 teachers, and indirectly (through peer training) reached over 30,000 students.

In South Africa, the programme has been implemented in provinces, reaching 2,000 learners, 50 volunteers and 50 schools.

In Nigeria, over 2,000 learners from 20 schools have been directly trained in three states and the campaign has reached over 15,000 learners in 38 states through a partnership with the National Film and Video Censorship Board, who have incorporated the programme to their State Internet Day celebrations.

In Kenya, an offshoot of the programme, known as Amara Hangout Bridges, focuses on the agency of young people in Kenya to use technology to build bridges of peace and understanding.

Google's implementing partner for this has been Twaweza Communications working closely with the Ministry of Education and the National Cohesion and Integration Commission (NCIC).

Cabinet Secretary Raphael Tuju will close the summit on Friday and deliver a message from the Excellency President Uhuru Kenyatta.

Mr Tuju will present certificates of recognition to the Web Rangers and the Web Ranger will present to him a Charter of Rights and Responsibilities Online that they developed.

Heavy Bookings for the 21st Auto Expo

The Alfa Romeo Owners Club is receiving heavy bookings for the 21st Auto Expo which will be held in conjunction with the CBA Africa Concours d'Elegance on September 30th at the Nairobi Racecourse.

The event provides the motor trade with the opportunity to showcase their vehicles during the classiest event on the motoring calendar.

Only three standard plots remain vacant and there is growing interest in the large plots which measure 12 by nine metres.

21 years ago vehicle agents recognized that the annual Concours d'Elegance had become a major motoring and social date on the Kenya calendar and invited the organizers to include a section for motor companies to promote their products and services.

The Concours organizers responded by introducing Auto Expo and "the key of the door" event on September 30th will feature 28 trade stands.

Among the exhibitors with large plots are DT Dobie, Nissan, Toyota, Car and General and Pipeman manufacturers who will be showing their range of exhaust systems and accessories.

Standard plots are favoured by companies selling spare parts, accessories, tyres and workshop tools. Exhibitors in this area include Total, Kingsway Tyres and Chloride Exide.

To enhance the appeal of Auto Expo CBA is arranging for spectators to vote for the best new car on display using a free SMS system.

A prestigious trophy recognizing the winning car at Auto Expo will be presented in the agent's show room after the event.

Information about Auto Expo is available on the Concours website www.concourskenya.com, or from the Bob Dewar Publicity office in the Block G of Norfolk Towers.

The email address is info@bobpr.com and the phone numbers are landline 2229793, 3316160, or 2229459 and mobile 0733732032 during office hours.

WATAMU (Kenya) --
Luxury hotel operator
Hemingways Collection has welcomed the launch of the Twin Migration
Campaign by the Ministry of Tourism and Wildlife.

The campaign seeks to promote the double annual migration of wildebeests in the Masai Mara and that of humpback whales in Watamu beach, a unique wildlife phenomenon on the savannah and the sea occurring between July and September annually.

In the boom years of 2013 and 2017 whale numbers reported stood at 550 and 390 respectively.

The whale migration has this year received a boost from the government with the Ministry of Tourism and Wildlife launching a promotional drive through the Kenya Tourism Board which is marketing the twin migration to attract visitors to the Mara and Watamu during peak tourism season.

Hemingways Collection Operations Director, Ross Evans, said they support the Kenya Wildlife Service and the Watamu Marine Association which have been studying dolphins and whales since 2011.

"In 2012, we became the first hotel in Kenya to offer whale watching excursions in addition to our ongoing support for marine research and conservation with Watamu Marine Association who have been promoting whale watching as an emerging eco-tourism activity on the coast since 2012," said Evans.

"This year we have launched the Watamu Bucket List campaign to promote Watamu as a tourist destination that offers unique and diverse activities and experiences.

"The humpback whale migration is a star attraction in this campaign and we are extremely pleased that the government, through the tourism ministry, has recognized and supported the uniqueness of Watamu beach and the variety of experiences on offer."

Through its exclusive selection of luxury properties, Hemingways Collection is able to offer inspired travelers a seamless and totally unique experience of the Twin Migration from the beach to the savannah, with layovers at the five-star Hemingways Nairobi.

The Watamu 'Bucket List' campaign has listed 10 must-do activities for visitors to Watamu.

how the local community manages conservation efforts.

Silverstone Air Starting Early Mombasa Flight

FROM FRONT PAGE Silverstone Air to consider connecting the East African region by extending their operations within the East African Community (EAC) region.

"Look beyond Kenya, in fact we have very good traffic (tourists) coming into our country from neighbouring Uganda and considering the fact that fares charged in a no-frills and low budget airline are affordable, Uganda could be an easy pick" said Hersi.

Kenya Coast Tourist Association (KCTA) Chairman Victor Shitakah, welcomed the new flights by Silverstone Air and said it was becoming easier for all to afford flying.

"It is no longer a preserve for the rich, when with 4000 bob, one could hop onto a plane and fly" he added.

Uganda Drops Terror Charges Against Three Kenyans

KAMPALA Uganda (Kenya) A court in Uganda has dropped charges against five suspects including three Kenyan nationals in the 2010 twin bombings in the capital Kampala that left over 76 people dead and dozens injured.

Margaret Omu Ogal, a judge at the International Criminal Tribunal for the Great Lakes region, terminated the proceedings against three Kenyans and two Ugandans who had been charged with terrorism-related offenses in 2016 following state requests.

Oguli ordered for the conviction of Muhammad Hamud Suleiman, Omar Awadh Omar and Yahya Suleiman Mubinyi to Kenya on the request of the Ugandan government. Odongo, Uganda's minister for internal affairs.

Lino Anguzu, the Principal State Attorney, informed court that Odongo wanted the three Kenyans deported or granted asylum if they were deemed undesirable immigrants in the East African country.

Parking Dilemma: When The Lady Driver Decided To Go Ahead With What She Had Been Avoiding!

Parking spaces in many places tend to be areas where there is very little drama. What one does is to simply arrive, manoeuvre into the space, get out of the car, lock the car (or otherwise) and then proceed to wherever one is heading.

On completion of one's engagement, then the reverse applies.

This routine is repeated time and again in parking spaces with little variation.

The changes to routine are in detail such as where there are multiple passengers or one has additional cargo or where one has to fix something on the car.

However, these places do have their own moments of drama, some imported from elsewhere and others caused by the very parking spaces themselves.

Kachumbari told us of a couple of occasions where there was drama in a parking area.

One resulted in damage to several vehicles and the other was damage to egos only.

In the first instance, a lady drove into a basement parking and looked around till she found a free three car bay whose extremities that was delineated by pillars at the four corners.

The rest of the parking areas had several vehicles in the bays and the lady was not sure about her parking skills so was looking for an unencumbered bay which would allow her to park easily.

She parked in the centre of the middle bay and anyone looking at the position of the vehicle would be excused for thinking that it was done by a professional driver.

She left and went into the building to run her errands.

On returning later in the day, having also attended an event in the atrium of the building where her son was involved, she found that the two cars on either side of her had parked so close to her car that she could not easily open the passenger doors.

They had also parked slightly skewed so that one could the driver door with a struggle and the also the rear passenger door in the opposite side.

For a while the lady pondered what to do and then decided to call the security person to try and get the owners of the cars to move them.

The security person went upstairs to the even and got the master of ceremonies (MC) at the event to announce for the drivers to go to the basement and move their cars.

Half an hour later no one had come.

The lady decided to do what she had been avoiding.

She asked her son to get into the back through the rear door that could open.

He yanked the door open and it hit the adjacent car causing the alarm to go off.

He ignored the alarm and got into the car - there was really nothing that he could do to stop the alarm.

The mother decided she would also do the same on her side of the car.

The same happened.

She opened the door and as she tried to squeeze into the space, the door pushed against the adjacent car and the alarm also went off.

You now had two car alarms yelling in the basement parking.

They both closed the car doors and the lady set about organising herself prior to starting the car.

At this point, the two people parked either side of her returned to find their cars alarming.

The looked around and the askari who had been sent to call for the owners told them that their alarms went off due to the occupants of the middle car were entering their cars and the doors touched.

The two gentlemen, who were a bit sloshed, turned on the lady and started calling her names.

They inspected their vehicles and found some slight denting in one case and scratched paintwork in another.

This made them even more agitated and they asked the lady to get out of the car so that they could talk "compensation".

The lady refused to get out.

They started to get violent and the security detail, realising the potential escalation, decided to intervene.

He was quickly told in his face that he had no part to play and he should return to his duty station.

He tried to plead and the two gentlemen would have none of it.

Another portly gentleman came by and asked the two men what was the matter.

They started making the case for compensation for the scratches that they got on the cars.

The lady was still in the car.

The fellow had a quick look and then produce his police ID.

The two gentlemen were extremely happy that they now had a person to whom they could officially complain.

The cop marked where their cars were and asked them to move the vehicles out.

Once they did that the cop asked the lady in the car to get out and leave her door open.

He also asked the son to get out.

He examined the car doors and then examined the other cars.

He then asked the team whether they wanted to go and get statements at the police station or whether they were willing to settle on the spot.

They all said on the spot.

He then went on to explain to the gentlemen that they had parked inconsiderately and that they were the ones who had created a situation where action by anyone else would result in damage to their cars.

The damage done by the lady and her opening their doors was simply because they were trying to get into their cars but the two cars adjacent had parked in a way that they infringed on eth space and that is normally expected to be avoided if all vehicles park properly.

The cop asked that they all meet them and shake hands.

The two gentlemen reluctantly agreed to the proposal by the cop and shook hands with the lady and her son.

The two gentlemen completely lost to this encounter by trying to make a molehill out of a mole hill.

In the time that they had been raising and terrorising the lady, a crowd had gathered and this is what drove them to get even more vocal and uncooperative.

When the cop finished with them, they that had gathered clapped and congratulated the cop for his work and the two gentlemen bowed by the crowd.

As Kachumbari says, mountains are made of large molehills!

Badbess of Riyadh, Saudi Arabia; Mustafa Said Khalil, Razia Mohamedali and Bashir Akhtar all of Mombasa; Peter Wafula Muhindi of Nairobi; Zakir Datoo, treasurer of the Nyalu Resident's Association and "Troubled Reader" who took issue with the editor over the propriety of a picture of a famous strip dancer at the Cave Night Club in the German section of the previous week's issue. The Editor commented that pictures were a question of degree and that a "tasteful" photograph of a semi-nude woman (or man) [was] always acceptable," but assured the writer that one would not find "obscene or directly lascivious photographs in Coastweek."

One of Kenya's top sprinters for several years, Tariq Mohamed Mughal, who was killed by armed robbers in his Nairobi home was mourned by T.L.

The PASSEX included a series of communications and maneuvering exercises, as well as helicopter training.

These provided the participating warships the valuable opportunity to exercise their communication and coordination linkages, strengthened the mutual understanding of the ships' capabilities, practices, and procedures, and significantly enhanced the interoperability of JS Akebono and ESPS

Kenya Bet Trade Expos To Showcase Emerging Investment Opportunity

MOMBASA (Xinhua) -- International exhibitions will be held in Kenya frequently to help showcase investment opportunities in President Uhuru Kenyatta's Big Four Agenda including manufacturing, food security, housing and universal health coverage, a senior official said on Tuesday.

Chris Kiptoo, the principal secretary in the ministry of industry, trade and cooperatives, said the government and private sector partners will be organizing regional and international exhibitions to sell Kenya as an ideal investment destination.

"Trade exhibitions play a pivotal role in promote the growth of investments in sectors that could help us realize goals set out in the Big Four Agenda and 2030 economic blueprint," said Kiptoo.

He spoke in Nairobi during the opening of 21st edition of Kenya International Trade Exhibition that attracted 150 exhibitors from 30 countries in Asia, Africa and Europe.

The two-day trade fair which is expected to attract 5,300 visitors will showcase products covering agriculture and manufacturing sectors, pharmaceutical, plastic and printing, hospitality, food and beverages industry.

Kiptoo said this year's edition of Kenya International trade exhibition was timely as the government rolls out a raft of incentives to attract investments in sectors that have a huge impact on the Big Four Agenda. "We believe that private sector led initiatives will be key to realization of our growth agenda."

The government has created a conducive environment for investors to play a meaningful role in advancing development," Kiptoo remarked.

He noted that creation of a commodities exchange platform, wholesale hubs and special economic zones, will enable the private sector fully exploit emerging investment opportunities in Kenya. Kenya's wholesale and trade retail sector that accounts for 7.6 percent of the country's GDP, is expected to catalyze industrial growth while creating new jobs.

Kiptoo said Kenya is well positioned to tap into opportunities presented by international trade exhibitions to accelerate transition from subsistence to high tech manufacturing led economy.

KENYA CALLING FOR JOINT POLICIES WITH AFRICAN GOVERNMENTS FOR 'AIR' TRAVEL

MOMBASA (Xinhua) -- Kenya has called on African governments to device joint policies for air travel within the continent. Gilbert Kibe, director general of the Kenya Civil Aviation Authority (KCAA), also said air travel in Africa is expected to increase tremendously in the near future but how airlines and airports work together to address this increase is still not very clear.

"Aviation is a rapidly changing industry with new technologies and entrants in the air traffic management operating environment presenting opportunities as well as challenges necessitating the need for a superior, efficient, unified, safe and seamless or efficient airspace utilization among industry players." Kibe told a regional conference in the coastal city of Mombasa.

He said by spearheading the Collaborative Decision Making (CDM) process which is an enabler of Air Traffic Flow Management (ATFM), Africa will link up with other ATFM so as to have real-time flight information for improved Air Traffic Management (ATM) efficiency.

The sixth edition of the Civil Air Navigation Services Organization (CANSO) conference brought together more than 200 aviation professionals from across the continent.

CDM in Aviation aims to improve operational efficiency at airports by reducing delays, improving the predictability of events during a flight and optimizing resources utilization.

The three-day conference aims to boost collaborative efforts to improve the safety standards of Air Traffic Management (ATM) operations across the region.

Najib Balala, tourism and wildlife cabinet secretary, called on the continent's aviation industry players to work together to increase the number of visitors to the region through standardized policies.

Currently, Balala said, only 60 million of the 1.4 billion global travelers come to Africa.

"The standards of service delivery must be international."

"We cannot have standards that are in Africa only and they are better in the First World," Balala said.

He said there are frustrations that international visitors experience in African airports that make them never want to come back again.

"Our aspiration is to see us become efficient to the levels of Singapore and Dubai," he said.

"To this end, Kenya is committed to providing technical assistance and support to our counterparts in our areas of expertise with a view of attaining comparable levels of Effective Implementation of ICAO Standards and Recommended Practices (SARPs) and enhancement in provision of air navigation services.

"This will ensure improved aviation safety and security performance in the region," said Balala.

Hamza Johari, CANSO Africa chairman and the Tanzania Civil Aviation Authority director general, said Collaborative Decision Making (CDM) approach taken by African aviation industry players will go a long way to removing some obstacles that prevent international travelers from coming to Africa.

Johari, however, said technological challenges in most African countries prevent the provision of seamless air navigation services.

He also noted that flight information regions differ in African countries in terms of polices and regulations making flying across African airspaces hectic for most airlines.

This makes some airlines avoid African routes.

"We want to have seamless in these flight information regions so that when an airline gets into a North African region airspace it will fly seamlessly into the South African region," Johari said.

Kibe said there is need to involve all stakeholders in decision-making in matters concerning air navigating services.

"Usually, we would be in a cocoon and only sit as the particular air navigation service provider or the particular airport and make decisions by themselves," said Kibe.

Sixteen Passengers Are Dead, Over 46 Injured In Road Crashes Across Kenya

NAIROBI (Xinhua) -- At least 16 people were killed and 46 others injured in separate road accidents across Kenya on Tuesday evening.

The police confirmed on Wednesday that 12 people were killed and nine others injured following an accident along the Nairobi-Naivasha highway on Tuesday evening.

Four other passengers were also killed and five others sustained injuries after a truck veered off the road in Roret, Kericho County on Tuesday evening in northwest Kenya while 32 police officers were injured in an accident along Mwingi-Garissa highway in northeast Kenya on the same evening.

In the first incident, Lari Traffic Police Base Commander Ahmed Mohammed confirmed the Kimende accident on Tuesday at 11 p.m. local time, saying the accident involved an 18-seater commuter minibus and a truck.

Mohamed said among those who died are primary school pupils whose books and uniform were spewed at the scene.

He said the public service vehicle was en route to Western Kenya from Nairobi when it hit the truck that was coming from the opposite direction.

"We have launched investigations into the incident," said Mohammed. He said the truck fell off a cliff due to the impact of the collision.

The traffic police commander said nine people died instantly while 3 others were pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Rescuers had a difficult time trying to get the victims out of the wreckage in the Kimende accident.

In the second accident, Kericho County Police Commander James Mugeru said the driver of the lorry that was ferrying sand from Soudi in Kisumu County in Western Kenya lost control of the vehicle.

Mugeru said the lorry ran over three pedestrians on the Roret-Sigowet road. The fourth victim was killed inside a cyber cafe.

"The lorry developed a mechanical problem while at a steep area. The driver lost control of the vehicle and ran over the three pedestrians before crashing into a building, killing another person," said Mugeru.

Meanwhile, 32 police officers were on Tuesday evening injured in an accident along Mwingi-Garissa highway.

On board were 32 officers. Police said as a result of the accident four of the officers sustained serious injuries and were attended at the hospital.

The incidents come as the number of fatalities in road accidents countrywide as of Aug. 26 has increased to 1,967 as compared to 1,835 last year.

Latest statistics from National Transport and Safety Authority covering January to Aug. 26 show that 2,905 people have been seriously injured which is an increased from last year's 2,619.

Seen [from left] African Arts and Crafts by Margaret Trowell, Gabra Woman by Joy Adamson, Pot by Magdalene Odundo, Work by Rosemary Karuga and Stained Glass Mosaic by Nani Croze.

National Museums of Kenya and The Murumbi Trust present an exhibition of artworks by nine acclaimed women of East Africa, titled "Pioneer Women of the Arts."

The opening ceremony will take place on Sunday, September 9 at 2:00pm, at the Nairobi Gallery in Nairobi, Kenya.

The exhibition will highlight works from legendary East African artists Margaret Trowell, Joy Adamson, Magdalene Odundo, Rosemary Karuga, Geraldine Roberts, Robin Anderson, Yony Wai-Te, Nani Croze, and Theresa Musoke, and will be open through December 8, 2018.

AMB. Amina C Mohamed, EGH, Cabinet Secretary for Education will lead the ceremony.

The exhibition's entertainment will be a performance by PAPILLON, a young Kenyan musician and protégé of the world-famous Kenyan musician Ayub Ogada.

PAPILLON creates his own instruments based on African instruments thousands of years old and writes his own music in an effort to preserve authentic Kenyan music not influenced by Western rap and hip hop.

PAPILLON follows in the footsteps of Kenya's African Heritage Festival, founded by Alan Donovan, which travels the world with its cast of models, musicians, acrobats, stilt walkers, hair dressers, chefs and others.

Each artist showcased in "Pioneer Women of the Arts" was selected based on the various paths that have paved their existence in the art realm, and their earned acclaim through their unique struggle.

These female artists have generated a significant impact on the art and culture of East Africa.

Trowell, with her six books and art school at the prestigious Makerere University in Uganda, which was the best in the region — and perhaps all of Africa, is undoubtedly an influential pioneer artist and teacher to whom all artists in East Africa owe a debt. Her main goal in creating art, Trowell said, was to "make it plain that art is of the people and natural to the people."

Adamson, conceivably best known for her children's books and later TV series "Born Free," has also had a tremendous impact on the preservation of African culture.

Throughout her travels, Adamson realized that she must paint the people of Kenya in their many tribal dresses before they were abandoned for Western wear and imports.

She spent six and a half years living in all parts of Kenya during this pursuit after the Kenyan Government commissioned her to make a comprehensive record of all the traditional dress and ornaments of the people of Kenya.

Odundo holds the highest position in international arts of any East African, as Chancellor of the University of Creative Arts in the UK.

She has received an OBE by the Queen of England for her service to the arts, and has achieved international acclaim for her ceramic and glass works, which have been collected in museums globally.

Odundo is known for being one of the world's greatest contemporary potters.

Karuga was the first woman to attend the prestigious Makerere University School of Fine Arts.

She has exhibited her works with the leading artists of the continent and has been a mentor to world-renowned ceramicist Magdalene Odundo.

Karuga pioneered a unique form of collage using local materials, and was eventually given a Lifetime Achievement Award for her contributions to the art world.

Roberts has lifelong experience as a painter and University Lecturer in Fine Arts, including Makerere University and Kenyatta University.

She is always pushing the boundaries of what paint, color, and new materials can achieve, and loves exploring the world to bring her inimitable style to her creations.

Roberts is also a prominent worker with grassroots women's groups in Kenya and has worked to bring art, health, and economic opportunities to communities who had previously struggled to survive.

Anderson has made a lasting impact on the art world of East Africa, perhaps most famously as the co-founder of the leading East African contemporary art gallery, Gallery Watatu, which served as a platform for serious contemporary art in East Africa with recurrent exhibitions by leading artists.

Inspired by the people and wildlife of Kenya, Anderson was a forerunner for what became a burgeoning industry of batiks in South Africa with her elegant batiks on silk.

Wai-Te is most famous for co-founding the first major contemporary art gallery in East Africa, Gallery Watatu, which has become the leading contemporary art gallery in the region.

Her wildebeest and wildlife paintings populate hotels and public buildings throughout East Africa and have gained her an international following and reputation synonymous with the safari style of the region.

Through her Wildebeests Workshops, Wai-Te has worked and trained many East African women's groups and artists.

Croze, as an artist, educator, and environmentalist, has brought another dimension to the art of East Africa.

Founder of the Kitengela Glass Research and Training Trust, a center for recycling used glass into art, Croze has conducted numerous glass training workshops for young women from Kibera slums creating glass beads, pottery, and mosaics.

Her monumental stained-glass and recycled glass works appear in numerous public spaces, including the courtyard and entry of the National Museums of Kenya.

Musoke was one of the first women to obtain a degree from Makerere University at a time when very few African women were attending University.

Her distinctive works romanticizing wildlife in a moody mixture of abstract batik and oil paintings have won Musoke great acclaim.

She also taught art at Makerere and other leading art institutions in East Africa.

YOUR GUIDE TO A GOOD TIME

Miritini Stars rallied from behind to score two goals in a dramatic three minutes spell to level the scores at 2-2 against visiting Bilima United in a thrilling FKF South Coast Branch Pool D match played at Miritini primary.

It was a high octane stuff as Miritini Stars resilience, fighting spirit and attacking prowess proved too much for Bilima United who eventually buckled and caved during the injury time.

Bilima United were regarded as favourites before the kick off and took lead in the 12th minute through Abubakar Pryce before Ramadhan Salim made it 2-0 ten minutes to time.

In the dying minutes Miritini Stars launched a comeback and struck dramatic equalizers to level the scores at 2-2 with goals from Omar Nassoro in the 87th minute and Gibran Kimega in the 98th minute.

With the results Bilima United maintained the podium position of the 9 team Pool D with 24 points from 11 matches and four points behind second placed Miritini Stars who have two matches in hand.

Bilima United play host to third placed Real Gongga from Mwatate in their next league match at Bilima ground on September 15, 2018.

Elsewhere in the other Pool D league match played at Mwatunge primary, Mwatate Real Gongga hammered Kongowea AIC from Mombasa 1-0 thanks to a strike by Anthony Mwasambu in the 37th minute.

At Viva ground, Ukunda hosts Green Marine were held to a one all draw by visiting Rabai Sports.

Benson Kabira broke the deadlock in the 42nd minute and Addie Mwambaji restored parity for Rabai Sports one minutes after resumption.

Meanwhile, Mikindani Youth Soccer Academy (MIYOSA) Ladies picked their first win of the season in the FKF South Coast Branch Women league with a narrow 1-2 win over Fortune Ladies in an entertaining match played at Freretown.

Mombasa.

MIYOSA under Coach Justine Nyagah needed a quick fix after their 2-3 home defeat by Ukunda Starlets.

MIYOSA drew the first blood in the 12th minute through Khadija Suleiman for 1-0 lead at the first stanza. Sabina Wanjiku made it 2-0 five minutes after resumption.

The hosts earned their consolation goal two minutes later through Diana Bahati.

The last quarter of the match was literally hot for both sides with the ball flying from one end to another.

The win enabled MIYOSA to move one place from the bottom position of the five teams.

MIYOSA have completed the first leg match with three points from four matches.

MIYOSA face Shofco from Bangladesh in the return leg match scheduled for August primary, Mombasa September 22nd, 2018.

During the first leg match played at St. Mary's Bangladesh Shofco won 3-1.

Meanwhile in the other Women league match played at Mwatungama primary Bright Starlets shared 2-2 spoils with Shofco.

Harambee Stars to Restore Africa Nations Cup Hopes!

NAIROBI (Xinhua) — National soccer team coach Sebastian Migne says his side is under pressure to win as he takes up his first major assignment with the Harambee Stars when they face Ghana's Black Stars in Nairobi on Saturday.

The Frenchman takes charge of the national team in a major competition for the first time. He will start on a precarious note as his side must avoid defeat to hold any hopes of making it to the finals of the Africa Nations Cup in Cameroon in 2019.

Migne has expressed satisfaction with the players' fitness and motivation ahead of the all-important clash. "We are working on getting ready for the match. Ghana will pose a tough challenge but I have trust in my players and I'm confident they will get a positive result," Migne said on Tuesday in Nairobi.

To revive their hopes of qualification, Kenya needs maximum points against Ghana, who are top of Group F. The Africa Nations Cup qualifiers started in 2017 but Kenya lost 2-1 to Sierra Leone in Freetown while Ethiopia went down 5-0 to Ghana in Accra. Only the 12 group winners and the three runners up with the most points will join Cameroon in finals.

Kenya last competed in the AFCON finals in 2004 in Tunisia and Migne was appointed with a specific clause inserted into his four year contract to try and help Kenya qualify for the World Cup or the Africa Nations Cup. Migne has five days to prepare his side in a training camp in Nairobi. The majority of the players who are based overseas are due in on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The scramble for a ticket to the finals is brutal with former champions pitted against each other. In the other groups Cameroon, who qualify automatically as hosts, are in Group B alongside 1976 champions Morocco, Malawi and Mauritius. In Group J, record seven-time winners Egypt lead North African rivals Tunisia, who won in 2004.

Haq, Puee Engage In KNRC Division 2 War

Ammar "Bushy" Haq lost his KNRC Division Two championship lead to club mate Sohanjeet Singh Puee after their home rally in Mombasa, reports SAMSON ATEKA.

Both Sohan and Ammar are itching to rev on their Nanyuki Rally about this weekend and this is what they had to say about their behind-the-scenes' division wars:

Ammar Haq: "Sohan and I are horses from the same MMC stable. So our rivalry is basically a learning experience on discipline and consistency."

"Our retirement was a harsh reminder that in rallying anything can happen."

"I had an 18 point lead and so I was driving at moderate pace to maintain that lead but the DNF threw us 7 points behind Sohan so now it's a toe to toe till the finish line."

"We have changed the clutch and we are shaking down the car this weekend and doing a final spanner check."

"I have never driven Nanyuki or even set foot so it's a totally new experience to me."

"From what I gather is that the stages are long so they must be very demanding on consistency."

Sohanjeet said: "Nanyuki will be a technical rally for us as I've never rallied in that area so I'm not well versed on the terrain so we will approach it cautiously but we will also have to maintain a good pace as we are still fighting for the group s and division 2 championship."

"Imran Khan and my fellow Coastarian Ammar have been driving superbly so the division 2 and group s championship is not won yet but we will definitely push to achieve our goal."

KNRC Division 2 Standings after MMC Rally:

1. Sohanjeet Singh Puee 120.
2. Ammar Haq 113.

CONSESLUS KIPRUTO WINS DIAMOND TROPHY IN ZURICH

NAIROBI (Xinhua) — Kenya's Olympic and world champion Conseslus Kipruto has signalled he intends to go beyond retaining his Diamond Trophy to clocking fastest time when he won the 3,000m steeplechase, despite running most of the race with one shoe.

Kipruto, world silver medalist in 1,500m Timothy Cheruiyot together with Hellen Obiri were the only Kenyans to claim the Diamond Trophy as the curtain came down on the premier track and field season in Zurich.

But of importance is their hunger to stage fast times at the Continental Cup in Ostrava, the Czech Republic on Sept. 8-9.

"This foot just won a Diamond," said Kipruto who had a big bandage on his left foot after he lost his shoe on the second lap of the 3,000m steeplechase but still won.

"It feels nice to have a win again. Sorry about the slow time. My ankle problem flared up again. I didn't want to let anyone down," he added on Friday.

Kipruto proved that it was winning rather than time that was critical as he put his form on the line to prove his critics wrong that he is still the best in the water and hurdle race.

"I have big pain," said Kipruto. "I am injured because I lost my left shoe. That was a mess. But it motivated me to fight as hard as I could, so the race went well."

Kenya's Obiri, who has endured a torrid season, came to life in the final to retain her title beating European champion Sifan Hassan of the Netherlands.

"Before the race I felt I would not win," said Obiri. "Finally everything came together, and I am proud. Next stop is at the Continental Cup and am ready for the challenge."

World and Commonwealth Games 1,500m champion Elijah Mananggi could not match Diamond League champion Timothy Cheruiyot finishing kick. Cheruiyot retains the Diamond Trophy for the second time clocking 3:30.27.

The finals in 32 events are being split between Zurich (Thursday) and Friday's in Brussels.

They mark the climax to the Diamond League season, with athletes accruing points at the year's previous 12 meetings in order to qualify for the finals.

There is a prize of 50,000 U.S. dollars for each final winner. It means that Kipruto, Cheruiyot and Obiri, all who retained their Diamond Trophy this season will walk home with 60,000 dollars being 50,000 dollars cash for winning the Diamond Trophy and 10,000 dollars for winning in Zurich.

Elite Runners Ask Kenya to Do More to Curb Rampant Doping

NAIROBI (Xinhua) — Elite Kenyan runners are piling pressure on Athletics Kenya (AK) to act fast and do more to curb the escalating doping cases and save the country's image in international competitions.

Former Boston marathon champion Wesley Korir, New York marathon silver medalist Mary Keitany and steeplechase world record holder Beatrice Chepkoech have called on Athletics Kenya to step up their fight against doping.

Speaking in Eldoret on Sunday the athletes have petitioned Kenya's athletics governing body to be proactive and take the war on doping head on even as the country has been listed among the top five where athletes are likely to cheat.

Anti-Doping Agency of Kenya (ADAK) is due to make public the names of athletes suspended in the last one year and what they are doing to fight the scourge.

"Kenya's athletics officials must take charge and keep away these doping athletes and those abetting it. We will not go far if we try to take a short cut," said Keitany.

Kenya together with Ukraine,

Belarus, Morocco and Ethiopia have been placed under category One of the countries likely to cheat and this means its athletes will be tested three times before competing at the World Championships.

"It is time somebody took charge. Heads must roll and those aiding doping are taken seriously and kicked out of the country and stay away from our athletes. I will not stay quiet yet our children are being exploited and misused. For the next generation to be successful, we need to take serious issues affecting our athletes," said Korir.

Steeplechase world record holder Beatrice Chepkoech said it was wrong to cheat.

"It is like stealing because you are not supposed to have any advantage over the other in sports," she said.

This comes just days after World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA) approved the establishment of a laboratory for Athlete Biological Passport

(ABP) blood analysis in Nairobi. The LANCET Group of Labs will be the first of its kind in East Africa and will be opened in Nairobi next week.

The laboratory is expected to analyze between 800 and 1,000 blood samples a year as part of the Athletics Integrity Unit (AIU) doping control program in Kenya, Ethiopia, Uganda, Tanzania and Eritrea.

"Starting in early September, the laboratory in Nairobi will perform blood analyses to support the (AIU) program as well as other anti-doping programs operating in the area such as that of the Anti-Doping Agency of Kenya (ADAK)," said ADAK Chief Executive Officer Japhter Rugut.

This will significantly lower the cost of processing anti-doping tests. Before the establishment of the laboratory, Kenya and other East Africa countries had to send their sample collection tests to South Africa, Qatar, Switzerland or Germany, which was time consuming and costly.

7's Coach Simiyu to Step Down

NAIROBI (Xinhua) — Kenya Sevens Rugby coach Innocent Simiyu will not extend his term in office after his contract expires in October.

Simiyu, one of the most successful coaches to have guided Kenya rugby team, says he has moved on and will seek work abroad after his position together with his technical bench was declared vacant without any of them stepping down.

"I am applying for again to coach the national team. I haven't really thought about it. I have moved on. I will not apply for the job," said Simiyu here on Saturday.

"I believe they (Kenya Rugby Union) have made the right decision. There are many good coaches locally and international who can help the team achieve their targets."

Simiyu will have to go despite posting the best performance for Kenya in the World Series. It was widely expected the Union would renew his contract but there is bad blood between the technical bench and the KRU administration.

Under Simiyu, Kenya was able to surpass the 100 points mark in World Series as it attained 104 marks.

The last time the team came close to this was in 2013 under Englishman Mike Friday when they collected 99 points on the circuit. Friday was sacked and he moved on to secure a coaching contract with USA.

In June, Simiyu owned up to save his players from being punished when he said it was his mistake the team blocked sponsors signage in Paris leg of the World Series in protest of their unpaid allowances and bonuses.

He was temporary sacked before he was reinstated for the Sevens World Cup in San Francisco.

Other coaches who have guided the Kenya Sevens team in the last decade include Benjamin Ayimba, Felix Ochieng, Friday, Paul Treu (South Africa).

The new season starts in November with Kenya hosting the Safaricom Sevens series before heading to the World Series in Dubai in December. KRU said it will have a new coach by November.
