Government Prioritize Manufacturing Sector

NAIROBI (Xinhua) -- Kenya will prioritize the expansion of the manufacturing sector due to its overall importance to the national economy, a senior government official said on Tuesday.

Cabinet Secretary in the Ministry of Industrialization and Enterprise Development Adan Mohamed told journalists in Nairobi that the sector currently contributes less than ten per cent of Kenya's Gross Domestic Product.

The aim is to see the manufacturing sector's contribution rise to 25 per cent by the year 2030," Mohamed said during the opening ceremony of the East Africa packaging conference.

The event brought exhibitors from 65 countries to showcase their latest innovations in the processing and packaging. He said the manufacturing tends to be labour intensive and will therefore help reduce the level of unemployment. The sector will also provide a market for the agricultural produce.

He said that over 70 percent of global trade is in manufacturing

> The NTSA could not have bee created at a more correct and necessary moment.

> In fact such an institution existed before but they had very little authority

> The earlier institutions were based on the tried and tested British system of administration that assumed that Kenya had probably reached a similar level of maturity in terms of road use.

In the earlier days the number of road users was small and the regulatory agencies had an easy

The greed that we have seen grow in Kenya was not there and the civil servants and other enforcement agency employees did not have the mind set of getting rich quickly.

A job was a job and people were happy with their lot.

The rapid change in societal expectations and aspirations that came about with the conspicuous affluence that developed after independence

The opportunities that people saw in public service especially the corruption of the political class - began to also influence the average mwa-nanchi as they sought to be and live like the bragging and conspicuous civil servants who started taking bribes and stealing public money to create lives that were driven by matching the rent seeking political class.

Against this background, the motoring scene rapidly became an arena for corruption and

Starting from the driving training and testing of road users, issuance of vehicular and personal licences and all the way through to the enforcement of compliance, the rent seeking brigade started and grew to large proportions.

The NTSA has it work cut out to try and change this large behemoth that has been built since the time Kenya became independent paigns and actions should multi faceted as the areas of are many and each re-infor-the other.

The priority in our view sho be to revamp the institutions impact on road safety. This na start with the training a licensing activity.

All driving schools should shut for six months and reopen after a vigorous and str revamp.

This was done for the public traffic sector where night done was stopped until the companion volved in the activity to complied with the requirement set by NTSA.

They are now slowly being licensed to operate at night

Driving schools are not essential so closing them til they comply with new streets standards will not cripple the economy.

It will create the sense of urgency that is required to go the change process started

As Kachumbari says, we must start with a root canal I

East African Community Absorbs 2 Per Cent Of Kenyan Exports In 201

NAIROBI (Xinhua) - The East African Community (EAC) bloc absorbed 24 per cent of Kenya's exports in 2013.

The Ministry of East African Affairs, Commerce and Tourism Principal Secretary Ibrahim Mohamed said in the same year, two per cent of Kenya's total imports came from the trading bloc.

"Kenya is therefore reaping the fruits of regional integration, " Mohamed said in a statement issued in Nairobi EAC member states include Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Burundi and Rwanda.

The ministry said it is also enhancing the capacity of Cross Border Trade Committees in order to facilitate international trade.

Mohamed said the One Stop Border Posts have also reduced delays at the border posts.

According to the government, regional integration provides a route to overcome the disadvantages of small economies by enlarging markets available to regional firms.

The EAC Customs Union was established in 2005, while the EAC Common Market was introduced in 2010.

In a well functioning, single customs territory, taxes and levies are levied on goods at the first port of entry and allowed to freely flow to their final destinations.

Mohamed said the protocol for the establishment of the East African Monetary

Union was signed last year and is a undergoing ratification by the member

"When fully implemented, the munion will create a single currency awill remove foreign exchange with the partner states," he said.

The economic bloc is also working addressing the challenges of No Barriers (NTBs) which have been har the flow of goods across borders.

"The partner states are currently dev a legally bidding mechanism for the elin of the NTBs," she said.

The member states have pledged to unnecessary roadblocks along the transport corridors

Interview: Egypt Eyes Bigger Role In Wor Trade With 'New And Enlarged Suez Cana

by Marwa Yahya ISMAILIA, Egypt (Xinhua) — The Chairman of Egypt's Suez Canal Authority has said that a new waterway project which was launched in August will be finalized in one year as scheduled, denying press reports about problems with funding.

In an exclusive interview with Xinhua, Mohab Mamish asserted that the new Suez Canal will be opened for navigation on August 6, 2015 as planned.

"The Egyptians have the will and capabilities to face challenges and crush difficulties," he stressed, adding:

"We are in a race against time to restore the economic and political position that Egypt deserves."

deserves."

On August 05, Egyptian President Abdel Fattah al-Sisi launched the new Suez Canal and urged the authority officials to finish the whole project in one year, expressing confidence that the new project will turn Egypt into one of the biggest world economic and industrial hubs.

The Suez Canal project will definitely affect the international trade volume, especially the trade exchange between the east and the west, Mamish said.

Since it started, the new project has not suffered any funding problems, the Suez Canal's chairman said, pointing out that "the project depends on four methods of funding: people, government, national investors and businessmen, and national banks."

He lauded the massive turnout on new investment certificates offered to fund the new project, whose sales have reached more than 20 billion pounds (nearly 2.79 million U.S. dollars) in only three days.

Four national banks started on Thursday offering certificates worth 60 billion pounds (8.6 billion dollars) for sale for Egyptians, in return for 12 per cent interest rate paid every

The new 72-kilometer (45 miles) waterway would help speed up the transiting of the vessels, and reduce the waiting time for passing from 11 hours to only three hours, Mamish said.

"By reducing the transiting time of the vessels, the canal will be the fastest means to transfer trade between the east and the west," added the Suez Canal's chairman.

This giant project will create one million jobs at a time when Egypt is struggling to recover from more than three years of political turmoil since the ouster of the long-time president Hosni Mubarak.

It also targets building international logistic zone, and nearly five billions of dollars in annual revenues.

Around 16,600 ships passed through it in 2013.

According to Mamish, the new canal is also attached to a bigger project that will develop all the canal cities by building five ports.

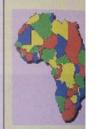

"The two projects are a security instrument for the coming generation and would help the Arab country to restore political and economic major role in the region."

Once finishing its master plans in the beginning of 2015, the corridor developing project will be offered for investors.

He added that trade volume and economic growth of China and Eastern Asian countries are in progress, and Egypt has to be ready to absorb the increasing canal made its biggest re in 2014, despite the secur political circumstances, that the canal is totally se "Securing the canal generating more revenuno one would send his to pass through an unstable Mamish said.

JAPAN AND KENYA AGREE TO BUILD U.S. $20 MILLION DOLLAR FERTILIZER PLANT

NAIROBI (Xinhua) - Kenya and Japan have signed a Memorandum of Understanding for the construction a fertilizer factory in order to address the high cost of the farm input.

Agriculture Cabinet Secretary Felix Koskei said late Tuesday that Japanese firm Toyota Tsusho Corporation has agreed to begin the construction of a U.S. $20 million dollar NPK plant by the end of

"By the middle of 2016, its production capacit will have reached 150,000 metric tonnes," Koske told a news conference in Nairobi.

He said that high cost of farm inputs and especially fertilizers has been identified as key constraints to high crop productivity.

"Due to the high cost of fertilizer, Kenyans use on averaged 31 kilogram per hectare compared to the recommended 200 kg per ha. The government has realized that manufacturing of fertilizer locally can result in affordable and accessible fertilizer,"

Kenya imports an estimated 500,000 metric tons Kenya imports an estimated 500,000 metric tons of fertilizer annually and the absence of a robust local fertilizer industry has made the commodity too costly to small-scale farmers.

In the last financial year, the government spent 44 million dollars in the fertilizer subsidy program.

"Fertilizer was distributed to farmers growing food crops such as maize as well as cash crops such as sugarcane and coffee," he said.

Toyota Tsusho East Africa Senior Advisor Dennis Awori said that the MOU will guide the process for the construction of the fertilizer plant.

The expected commercial mining of phosphates from Uganda and Kenya's natural gas will provide cheap source of raw materials for the fertilizer plant," Awori said.

By the end 2014, the firm hopes to be producing at least 500 million metric tons of fertilizer annually for Kenya and the East Africa region.

UGANDA BIDS TO HOST WORLD X-COUNTRY CHAMPIONSHIP 2017

KAMPALA (Xinhua) — Uganda on Wednesday sent a delegation to Morocco to submit the country's bid to host the 2017 World Cross Country Championship.

Dominic Otuchet, president of the Uganda Athletics Federation (UAF), told Xinhua in an interview here that they have prepared a solid document which they will submit in the bidding this Championship because we have what it takes to host a big event," said Otuchet.

This is a big event which will attract over 70 countries and regions, and therefore having all stakeholders to support it is paramount," he said.

After successfully hosting the Africa Cross Country Championship in March this year, Uganda are confident they can win the bid.

We have the grounds and hotels to stage this Championship which will have over participants," said Otuchet.

The Commissioner for Sports in the Ministry of Education and Sports, Omara Apitta, UAF technical official Michael Byaruhanga and Otuchet made the trip ahead of the presentation of the bid on Thursday.

The bids will be presented to the International Amateur Athletics Federation (IAAF) Council meeting that will be held alongside the Intercontinental Cup that is set for Sept. 13-14.

Uganda is competing against Bahrain, as the two countries that made it to the final stage of the bidding. The final bidding process will be in Monaco France in October this year.

Kenya, who hosted the IAAF World Cross Country Championship in 2007, is the only country in the East African region ever to host this big event.

Coast Golfer Lagoussis Lifts The CAK Trophy!

She did it. She has been threatening to do it and finally she did it.

What Frances Lagoussis did was to lift the trophy of the Communications Authority of Kenya Day competition staged at Nyali Golf and Country Club on Saturday 6th September 2014.

For the benefit of post 1990 golfers at the Coast, delving into golfers at the Coast, delving into a bit of history, in her hey days, before you took up golf, Frances dominated the ladies golf amongst a highly skilled group of ladies which included Joyce Haji, Elizabeth Chater, Colleen Payne, Elizabeth Wilson and Ann McConnell McConnell

Until she left the Coast for pastures greener, Frances was the best lady golfer in the field battling successfully some newer, younger golfers who broke on to the scene, which included Kiran Patel, Jane Njoroge and Bessey Habermacher, Bessey taking not too long from the time she first started to play golf to establish herself as undeniably the best golfer at the Coast. golfer at the Coast.

Bessey too went away by Diana Munyao whom most of you know and had the pleasure of seeing in action, claiming her place in the top echelons of the ladjes' golf at the Coast.

While on the reminiscing mood, to complete the narrative we should look further down to the entry of the youngsters, Fareen Samji, Carole Barnsley and Rachel Chebukati who gave Diana quite a bit of competition but for not too long as they too left in pursuit of other goals in life.

Going back to Frances, the lure of the sea and the sun brought her back to the Coast and the golfing form of her more youthful days has taken a bit longer to
